

Case Study: Employment

Client | Harassment at Betting Shop Resolved

Our client worked in a betting shop and had been the victim of sexual harassment. Her employers had given her time off work and told her to 'come back when you are feeling better', though she felt that her case wasn't being taken seriously.

After coming to the Law Centre with her concerns, our employment solicitor advised her to inform the police of what had happened to her.

After the police had visited the shop her case was moved forward appropriately and our client feels that progress has been made.

